

Dear Wilberforce Students,

I hope this letter finds you well into a very enjoyable summer. My name is Ronald Diggs and I am honored to lead the Student Government Association (SGA) at Wilberforce as the student president for the 2017-2018 school year. Wilberforce University is truly a unique place and while I'm sure you're all excited to start, know that we are all equally excited to see all of you as Wilberforce students for the first time. To all the returning students, I hope you're all ready for this next year. When I last addressed the School in April, I accepted the honor of becoming your Student Government Association President. My encouragement to the student body is to make use of the family around them. I implore the student body to engage with all of the people around you this upcoming year and build stronger relationships, especially with the people whom you don't normally interact. I'd like to extend this invitation to the new students as well; you're about to join a group of incredibly diverse people that have much to offer and, while I certainly support you all in making strong friendships with the people that you'll be seeing every day, I also ask that you look beyond them and take the opportunity to meet as many students, new and returning, as possible. You won't regret it.

Sincerely,

Ronald Diggs
